Tsarina rings on Mar 17 2009, at 14:21

<![CDATA[This is one really pretty ring called Tsarina with diamonds and alexandrite stones. The colour change is the appeal for me going from green to red in different light. Alexandrite is one of my favourite stones and this particular design looks fabulous.

Stunning eternity alexandrite ring on Mar 19 2009, at 19:14

<![CDATA[A stunning eternity ring set with 1.25ct of rich bluish-green round natural alexandrite in 14kt yellow gold. The 6 brilliant-cut stones change to vivid purple with red tertiary flashes in incandescent and candle light. These stones have an incredibly deep, vivid coloration. This ring was handcrafted with master workmanship.

Very modern, sleek Alexandrite ring on Mar 19 2009, at 22:47

<!CDATA[Nicolette - an appropriate name for this fabulous [alexandrite ring, meaning victory of the people. I love this design with the combination of alexandrites and diamonds. Very strong linear lines, yet feminine with the blue green/pink colour change.]>

<![CDATA[Classic bluish-green coloration make this vintage alexandrite ring a standout. The oval alexandrite has a very strong and vivid color change and set between two quarters of 18kt yellow gold studded with diamonds.

Alexandrite diamond ring on Apr 11 2009, at 09:12

<![CDATA[Last week I came across a listing for an alexandrite ring at David Wein. Nice ring that looks a lot like of my grandmother's, but in white gold.

Mark Henry alexandrite ring on Apr 11 2009, at 09:23

<![CDATA[I can not believe of the color change of alexandrite jewelry in the Mark Henry brochure. I heard that they use alexandrite only from Malacacheta and Hematita.

Does anyone have a better photo of their alexandrite jewelry?
